MEET THE STAFF

MEET LEAD GLASS HOT SHOP INSTRUCTOR, DAVE VOGT

Born and educated in the Midwest, Dave earned a Master of Science in Electrical Engineering from Michigan Technological University in 1979. Moving to Phoenix following graduation, he successfully pursued an engineering and entrepreneurial career.

Starting in college, he collected glass art and often had the opportunity to observe well-known glass artists at work. "It always looked like they were having too much fun. One year my wife bought glassblowing lessons for a Christmas present. From that time on we were both hooked."

In 1994, Dave retired from engineering and started to work full-time as a glass artist. The first step was to acquire the equipment to build a hot glass studio. It was nearly impossible to go to a catalog and order equipment needed to work with molten glass. David's engineering background allowed him to design and build his own glass blowing equipment. Phoenix's only hot glass studio, at the time, was opened.

Dave has traveled throughout the country to learn and develop additional techniques for working hot glass. Unlike many glassblowers, he tends to work alone. This has required him to develop techniques and tools that allow him to complete many of his creations without assistants. His paperweights, marbles, bowls and solid sculptures are on display in galleries throughout the USA.

Current interests are in producing functional and decorative objects and teaching others who share an interest in creating objects using hot glass.

MEET LEAD GLASS STUDIO INSTRUCTOR, TROY MOODY

Troy Moody's passion for glass was ignited when he was introduced to postwar German stained glass as a young man, backpacking across Europe. Awestruck by the monumental abstract work, he returned to the states and began pursuing glass as an expressive medium.

Since then, Troy has spent more than two decades creating unique art glass installations for sacred, commercial, public and private spaces across Arizona. His Public Art Portfolio includes more than 85,00 square feet of award winning Terrazzo designs for the Phoenix Convention Center and the Maricopa County Superior Court Tower. Other notable projects include work for Scottsdale Public Art, the City of Glendale, Ascension Lutheran of Paradise Valley, the Phoenix Church of the Beatitudes, the Salvation Army's Southwest Headquarters and countless luxury homes.

In addition to his site-specific work, Troy combines contemporary kiln-forming techniques with traditional stained glass painting and construction to create autonomous art glass panels and assemblage sculpture. His mixed-media gallery work is exhibited and collected nationwide. Troy is a frequent contributor to various glass art publications and serves on the Board of Directors for the American Glass Guild. He has been sharing his interdisciplinary approach with students at the Mesa Art Center since 2008.
